DOGS.

Editor of News:

Have we a dog catcher or have we not? If we have one when does he catch dogs and how? If he catches them, are they turned loose again or what? Is the dog tax license still on the statute books; if so, does anybody take out a dog tax license any more, anyhow What dog-gone use is a dog anyhow? Eh! What!

CANIS MAJOR.

STREET TREE PLANTING.

To Editor of News:

It is about a month now since Glendale had its "Clean-up Day," and great things were promised from what was then done. I have looked our streets over carefully, but do not find that anything more is being added to the good work started by the ladies at that time. There was talk of tree planting, but if anybody has set a tree out along our streets since then, I should like to have it shown to me. This is just the way these enthusiastic affairs usually turn out, but I did hope it would be different in Glendale. It seems to be easy enough to get up a free luncheon and coax people out to help eat it and do a little work just to put an edge on appetites which are not generally in need of a tonic; but to keep up the proper spirit afterwards and get things done, is another matter. It is now a good time of year to plant all sorts of deciduous trees and something ought to be done at once. Can't something be done that will cause our people to be "up and doing?"

Yours for Improvements,

OBSERVER.

PUBLIC WORK ON SUNDAY.

To the Editor:

On Sunday before last there was a team of six or eight horses and a man or two, at work on the improvement of Fifth street. To the most of our citizens, I believe that this public work on the Sabbath day is very offensive and I think that the city trustees should put a stop to it. If it is done by the contractor, there is a probability that they cannot prevent it in this particular case, but they might guard against it in the future by inserting a clause in the contract to cover the case. Allow me to express my thanks to you for opening your columns to those of us whom you have sometimes spoken of as "kickers."

A MASTER BUILDER.

Mr S. W. Corwin is just putting the finishing touches on a $3000 house on Central avenue, north of the city limits, which with the exception of the assistance of the plasterers and plumbers, is entirely the work of his own hands. That Mr. Corwin is a workman of varied parts is evidenced by the character of the work accomplished, all of it from concrete foundation to the polished hardwood floors being first-class in every particular. The house is supplied with all modern conveniences and has many little details suggested by comfort, not usually found even in up-to-date residences.

The city engineer was instructed to recommend a grade on Seventh street between Brand boulevard and Central avenue.

Trustee Watson on behalf of the fire apparatus committee, recommended that a committee be appointed to take up the matter of organizing a volunteer fire company. On motion the following committee was appointed: Messrs. Fred Deal, D. D. Fitch, W. L. Nelson, W. C. Fraley and R. C. Sternberg. The clerk was instructed to notify this committee to meet next Saturday evening.

The city attorney was instructed to prepare resolutions ordering in the work on Ninth and Chestnut streets.

Trustee Watson offered a resolution No. 106, adopting map showing improvements on a portion of Louise street; same was passed.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23d.

GLENDALE GUN CLUB,

Glendale Cal.

DEAR SIRS:—You are hereby authorized to organize a company unit as a part of the Southern California Rifles, your territory to embrace the San Fernando Valley with headquarters at Glendale.

Such gun clubs or other organizations as wish to join the company may do so without losing their identity; however, they must conform with the general rules of the Southern California Rifles.

At such time as you deem you have sufficient numbers, you may call for an election of officers.

Very sincerely,

W. H. LEONARD, President.

AT THE GLENDALE LIBRARY.

Miss Mabel Prentiss, one of the two State library organizers, who is constantly occupied in traveling throughout the State and at the State library at Sacramento, attending to the duties pertaining to her position, is spending a short time in Southern California making brief visits at all the libraries of this section previous to the State library meeting at San Jose in February, and called at the Glendale library on Monday afternoon.

A special feature of the State meeting this year is to be a library institute devoted to practical methods connected with library work. This course of instruction will be conducted by Miss Kumli and Miss Prentiss, the two trained State library organizers, and the aim is to fit persons not having taken a library course to practically apply the best and latest library methods in their library work.

These flying visits of Miss Prentiss to the libraries of this part of the State are to show her the requirements of each library that needed individual instruction may be imparted at the institute.

Miss Prentiss expressed satisfaction with the step taken by Glendale in creating a public library and with the work, though financially limited, of course, done by the library board of trustees.

The new books just received at the library are being loaned as seven-day books in order that all may soon have an opportunity of reading them and are constantly out.

Two of them are reviewed below:

"Truthful Jane," by Florence Morse Kingsley. Many readers who are familiar with this author's delightful book, "The Transfiguration of Miss Philuria," which was so cordially received, will be interested in this later story of an aristocratic, penniless orphan girl, dependent upon harsh and haughty wealthy relatives from whom she flies to America, to which country she is followed by an elderly, titled suitor, besides having many other trials in making her living, and others induced by her painful truthfulness of character. She finally becomes an heiress, marries and "lives happily ever after!" High ideals and nobility of thought and action are dominant as these qualities are in all of this author's writings.

"The Weavers," by Gilbert Parker. This is a tale of England and Egypt of fifty years ago, most beautifully illustrated by Andre Castaigne. The dedication "Beautiful and Beloved, this to you," gives the keynote of the book throughout. While the book is not intended to be historically correct, it is essentially true to the life of both countries and presents ideals of truer living and an enlarged scope of action. It fosters the best in human life without giving the impression of being didactic. Gilbert Parker has the spirit of love and sympathy and justice which, united with his splendid intellectual capacity and unusually fluent power of expression, fits him to lift mankind through his characters above human frailties.

STRAWBERRIES.

Here is mid-winter and the Glendale market is supplied with home-grown strawberries, that are prodigious of size and color. They come from the fields of Mr. Smalley, in Sycamore Canyon, which have been producing berries steadily since March. Many of the berries are two inches in diameter and they will average an inch and a half.

A LETTER OF THANKS.

Just a word of thanks to the dear ladies of the M. E. church for their kindness in making it possible for us to have such an enjoyable time as we had at Mrs. Dana Fiske's, on the 15th inst., in honor of my unworthy self. It was so dear of those loving hearts and willing hand to undertake such an elaborate surprise, when I got there in response to a called meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society, to see both rooms and reception hall filled with smiling faces. It was almost sufficient to take away my breath, as I did not have any too much, for I had just gotten over an attack of La Grippe.

My heart will ever cling around the memory of that day, and I assure you that I certainly reciprocate your love and esteem, and the precious little gifts will be daily tokens of that lasting friendship which will live I trust through all eternity. I was so delighted with the ribbon with the names upon it, as I had said to one lady I intended to take all the names of the ladies of each auxiliary so that I would never forget them as time passed on, but they never knew that I made that remark, so that made me quite happy to think they had the same idea.

Now in regard to dear old Glendale, for it is old to me, but ever new, as I never tired of looking out upon its lovely surroundings, its mountains, and hilly slopes, its beautiful trees and now pretty homes wherever you turn, it is, indeed, an ideal place. I love this valley as I never could love any other place, for when we came here from England, twenty-three years ago, for my health, we were strangers in a strange land and had no friends, but we soon found all were our friends; they showed such a sweet Christian spirit in doing unto others as they would have others do unto them, in making us feel at home and also in helping to provide things for our comfort, they will know whereof I speak. So I thank the oldest of the Valley friends for all their kindness in the early days. We have often spoken of our early experience, so for these reasons Glendale is a dear home spot that will ever live in my memory and I shall always be interested in its welfare. So to all I lovingly say farewell.

MRS. THOS. HEZMALHALCH.

CHRIST STEINER DEAD.

Christ Steiner, a half-brother of Mr. J. Ehman, of Verdugo Road, died at Mr. Ehman's residence, on Tuesday morning. Mr. Steiner was the victim of a railroad accident while employed by the Southern Pacific company, at Kern City, five years ago, and has spent three years in the hospital since that occurrence. His spine was seriously injured by the accident and it is thought that the ride out to Mr. Ehman's, about two weeks ago, was the immediate cause of his death. This is the second brother that Mr. Ehman has lost by a railroad accident.

COUNTY TAXES.

The State tax rate for the current year is .445. The county rate for the year is .655, which amounts to 1.10, inside incorporated cities. Outside incorporated cities there is road rate amounting to 60 cents on the hundred. The tax rate for Glendale, therefore, is 1.10 plus the special school tax of 42 cents, a total of 1.52, payable to the county. The Glendale city tax is 85 cents.

GLENDALE, CAL., JANUARY 25, 1908

A jury has decided that Dr. J. T. Stewart must pay to Mrs. Ruby Marion Kinsey the sum of $5000 damages for performing a surgical operation which was not necessary.

This is a good example, and it is to be hoped will deter doctors from cutting and slashing as recklessly as some of them have been in the habit of doing.

The Troubles of Sawtelle

Sawtelle, as a sister city in our class, seems to be having its troubles. The Enterprise complains that the trustees paid out in one month $955.51, of which $214.82 was for printing; $197.50 for engineering, and $189.66 for legal services. Then there is a city marshal, city recorder, city treasurer, deputy marshal, city clerk, health officer and garbage collector, all of whom are on the pay roll for the month.

Verily, the comparison makes Glendale look rather cheap!

The peonage system in some of the southern states is worse than ever was African slavery. The government is endeavoring to break it up, but finds it difficult to accomplish anything owing to the condition of public sentiment. A southern grand jury recently refused to bring in indictments when they had the strongest kind of evidence before them.

Italians are the particular victims of the infamous system. For some infraction of the law they are sentenced to serve a term in the penitentiary and then are hired out to contractors to work out their time. The convict camps are said to be indescribably filthy and brutality is practiced systematically.

The Earth is Theirs

A millionaire automobilist in Los Angeles, several times an offender, has been let off by the police judge with a very small fine.

The automobile people come pretty near owning the earth. The streets of Los Angeles are becoming a terror to pedestrians; the only compensatory reflection is that it will result in a survival of the physically fit, for the aged, lame, halt, blind and deaf will soon be eliminated and we shall survive as a nation of expert dodgers; that is unless the city authorities arm the street corner policemen with long barreled scatter guns, for while in London a policeman's uplifted finger obtains instant obedience, in this land of the free the citizen only obeys when the officer has "the drop" on him.

Another Street Car Line

This is not a rumor; it is an idea. We present elsewhere some figures showing the extent to which Glendale has grown, which will no doubt be a surprise to the most of our readers.

The development on the east side of the city is the most surprising, because owing to the orchards and shade trees which obstruct the view, the superficial observer gets no adequate idea of what has been accomplished during the last two years. And now that the railroad there is practically assured, the growth will be more rapid.

Now why should we not have a railroad from east to west across the valley, extending from the San Fernando Road to the eastern city limits, or better, to Eagle Rock? Probably it would not pay in the start, but it would in the near future. The franchise would soon be valuable and the good results upon the entire community would be incalculable. It would go further towards making Glendale a unit than anything we can conceive of. It would enable our residents to become acquainted with their own town, which is not possible without some means of public conveyance. It would supersede the present bus line and be clearly a project for the benefit of the whole community.

William Howard Taft

It is about a year since in these columns we nominated William Howard Taft for the presidency. And we prophesied that the nomination would be seconded by the American people just as soon as they began to consider the matter. They have now considered it, and at the present time Mr. Taft is the one candidate who is now acknowledged by everybody to be far in the lead.

Governor Hughes of New York is at present our second choice, but his chances are, in our estimation, very poor. He is too independent to succeed in practical politics. It is true that he had the governorship of New York thrust upon him, but the occasion is rare when the office seeks the man and the candidate who is in a merely receptive frame of mind and does not exert himself to secure what he wants is likely to be overlooked.

Our successful statesmen are practical politicians; they are not above looking after the practical details of primaries and conventions, neither are they at all coy about making their wishes known.

Mr. Taft added greatly to his reputation by the recent speech in which he explained the causes of the late financial trouble and defended the policy of President Roosevelt. With loyalty to his chief, he at the same time exhibits a sturdy independence which assures in him a worthy successor to the man who now occupies the presidential station.

Harriman vs. Roosevelt

It is given out by Walter Wellman, news correspondent, that E. H. Harriman has given orders to Mr. Odell, ex-governor and ex-boss of the state of New York, to see to it that the Empire state gives its endorsement to the candidacy of Gov. Hughes for the presidency.

This probably means that Mr. Harriman loves not Hughes the more, but Roosevelt less; and that Mr. Taft being approved by the president is not approved by Mr. Harriman.

The endorsement of Gov. Hughes at this stage of the contest does not necessarily carry with it a sincere desire to see him made president. Gov. Hughes stands very high in the estimation of the people, who justly regard him as independent, able and fearless. He is not the ideal timber for railroad magnates to make presidents out of, and when he has their apparent support we may well question the sincerity of it. It is an old dodge in politics to put up one popular candidate against another in the hope of defeating both, and it is very often successful.

In the present instance Mr. Taft so intimately represents Roosevelt and his policies that the opponents of the president can be depended upon to bend all their energies toward the defeat of the presidential aspirations of his brilliant secretary of war.

There is no reason to suppose that Gov. Hughes has entered into any compact with Harriman; it is inconceivable that he should do so; and we can imagine him seriously embarrassed by having thrust upon him the friendship of the railroad magnate.

That his candidacy in his own state should be notably favored by ex-Gov. Odell, whose work while governor Mr. Hughes has been kept busy undoing, must add further to his embarrassment. Indeed, if it is true that Harriman openly advocates the nomination of Hughes, we believe that that worthy gentleman will not at convention time have left the ghost of a chance of securing the nomination.

The English and the American Way

We published two weeks ago an extract from a speech by Whitelaw Reid in which he called attention to the difference between English and American schools and the results obtained. He says that the English schools "do turn out orderly, well-behaved boys and girls," and intimates that the American youth fall behind in that proper regard for authority which makes good citizens.

This does not mean that there is not good discipline observed in our American schools, but he makes the point that in our desire to avoid anything resembling sectarian teaching, we fail to inculcate in the minds of youth a proper reverence for authority. Possibly, however, the difference noted may not be so much the result of some defect in our schools, as it is in the differences in the home life. We doubt very much whether serious defects in the character of our youth can be laid at the door of our schools, altho we agree with Mr. Reid that we might better risk laying ourselves open to the charge of sectarianism than to neglect altogether the teaching of the higher morality which rests upon the sacred Scriptures.

It is reasonably safe to assume that defects in the character of our American youth are due more to the laxity of American parents than to any other cause. And perhaps this is better exemplified in the growing disregard for the Christian Sabbath than in any other particular. A boy who is allowed to get into the habit of looking upon the first day of the week as especially designed for the purpose of allowing him to attend a base ball game or a picnic, is hardly likely to become an ideal citizen. Probably he will not be a bad citizen; he will quite possibly turn out to be a citizen of average honesty; but the trouble is that our average is likely to be lowered and there will not be a large enough number of "ideal" citizens to maintain the standard requisite for good government!

The church and the school have upon them a weighty responsibility for the formation of character, but after all characters are really made or marred in the home.

OUR NEW YORK LETTER.

When, ten years ago, the five boroughs now constituting the present city of Greater New York were consolidated, there was doubt expressed as to the result. It is reassuring, therefore, to learn from Mayor McLellan's New Year's message that each of the boroughs has benefited by the union from the centralization of power which, working through the great departments, has provided the best of police and fire protection, pure and regular water supply, cleanliness of streets and safeguarding of public health, a greater and better school system and insured progress along all lines of municipal improvement.

It is agreeable to learn that the most rigid economy has actuated the New York administration and that, as a consequence, the increase in the budget for 1908 over that of 1907 is only $13,150,760,51. (The odd cent is noteworthy; it might so easily have been a nickle if they had been extravagant). As for the actual amount of the 1908 budget, I will forbear stating it, out of consideration for the editor's supply of figures; but 143 millions and a half covers it in round numbers. The mayor urges a thorough revision of the salary schedule for the city employes on a uniform basis whereby a large saving would accrue to the city. Among the economies is the turning down of the board of education's recommendation for increases in the pay of deserving teachers.

In the same message are given some striking statistics regarding public education in New York which may interest your readers. Since Jan. 1, 1907, the public school accommodation has been increased by 50,235 sittings, in 18 new schools and 24 additions, while contracts were awarded for 13 new buildings and 10 additions, to contain 36,000 sittings. Further, there are now under contract or construction 28 new buildings and 18 additions providing for 74,560 sittings. Plans are also under way for 10 new buildings and 9 additions, representing 29,980 sittings; 48 sites have been purchased and authorization given for the acquisition of 33 other sites. The total number of schools now under the board's control is 514, consisting of 3 training schools for teachers, 19 high schools, 489 elementary schools, 2 truant schools, and 1 nautical school. With all this showing, if ignorance is bliss, the outlook for the rising generation is certainly gloomy.

The Rental Strike.

Regarding the rental strike of the East Side tenement occupants, Justice Roesch of the Madison street court, who is versed in local conditions, says: "It is unfortunately true that the East Side is suffering from a sort of absentee landlordism. The owners of the fee, in many cases, have let to others. These in turn to others, and often these second lessees to others; and often these second lessees to third parties. The original owner stands aside now and looks on with astonishment at the profit that subsequent lessees are making on his own property. The result has been that this second and third squeeze of lessees against tenants have raised the rent, in many a case, to an extent not warranted by natural conditions." There seems, therefore, some ground for the rent reduction agitation amongst a class of citizens to whom, at the best, life is a pretty hard struggle. The Socialists have helped largely in the organization of the tenants and claim that about 20 landlords have already been induced to concede reductions. A number of the owners, have also organized in their own interests and are trusting to the moral effect of the first series of evictions in changing the attitude of the majority of the discontented. At this writing, although over a thousand eviction warrants have been signed, according to the justices, probably not more than ten per cent. will be issued some compromise between landlord and tenant being usually arrived at in the last resort.

Completion of Tunnel.

"Blest be the tie that binds." This refrain in various paraphrases is today and for many a day will be ringing in the hearts of the million Brooklynites and the hordes of other commuters who reside in Long Island towns as they rejoice over the accomplishment of an all-land route between Manhattan and Long Island by means of the tunnel now open, which leaves Manhattan at the Battery. Trains hereafter will run direct from the Subway system of New York, to Brooklyn Borough Hall station in eight minutes, as against twenty minutes (sometimes) by way of the bridge. The actual passage under the river occupies only about four minutes. Over 20,000 people an hour can be carried, thus materially relieving the daily jam on the bridge in the busy hours. Not least of the resultant benefits will be the saving of time and temper of many a commutor to whom life has too often seemed a nightmare from the frequent blockades and wearisome waits on the bridge. Incidentally it will enhance the values of Long Island realty, where the astute agents have not already anticipated the rise.

A Few Statistics.

It is difficult for the average individual to appreciate the magnitude and many-sided aspects of a great metropolis like New York. The following authentic figures from the annual report of General Bingham, police commissioner, may help a little: Total number of arrests for 1907 were 11,416; 419 policemen were injured in the discharge of their duty, four being killed. Pensions were given to 225 police officers, aggregating $174,000. Missing persons reported in 1907 numbered 2177, of whom 628 are still unlocated. The unknown dead number 211. Of lost children, 3614 were reported. In Manhattan Borough alone, 179 foundlings came into police hands. Plenty of material yet for the dime novel.

If the above figures indicate a vast and complex community they no less strikingly evince the unceasing vigilance and care of the municipal administration and the systematic work of the police department in particular. New York may have its own blemishes, but it is yet young and is gradually outgrowing them; upward and onward is its steady trend. In spite of its skyscrapers, its elevated railroads, its glaring electric advertisements and a few other exaggerated modernisms, New York is a comfortable place to live in for those who have to stay in the East. And there are worse dwellings than one of Gotham's three-story brownstone houses, with its 16 to 20-foot frontage. But there are better ones, too; and to me, a $3000 Glendale bungalow with its garden of bloom and shade looks better than the stateliest $100,000 mansion in th aesphalt wastes of New York.

Grading on Cedar between Third and Fifth streets, is progressing, and work on the cement walks and curbing has commenced. The cement work will be done by private contract, and has been awarded to E. D. Reynolds.

On Tuesday afternoon the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the First Presbyterian church met with Mrs. B. F. Patterson, Dayton court. The home topic, "Foreigners in the United States," was presented by Mrs. S. Lawrence Ward.

W. L. Reed and wife of Monteith, Iowa, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. T. McClellan on Second street. Mrs. Reed is a sister of Mr. McClellan; they will probably remain until March or later. Mr. Reed has large interests in land in the neighborhood of Perris.

Mr. Edward H. Dean, died on January 18th, at his residence at Seventh and Louise streets. The funeral services were held at Pulliams Undertaking Parlors on January 20th, and interment was had at Forest Lawn cemetery. Mr. Dean leaves a mother, wife and one child.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Bartlett, of Ontario, where they owned a thirty-acre orange grove, have come to Glendale to reside, and for the present have taken a house on Orange street. They have purchased a fine corner lot on Brand boulevard and First, where they will build soon.

Miss Anna Rowlands, of Connecticut, a niece of Mrs. Dow, who visited her parents, Rev. W. S. Blackburn and wife, last summer, was the guest on Wednesday of Miss Mary Blackburn. Miss Rowlands expects to spend several weeks visiting in Altadena, Los Angeles and vicinity.

There was an installation of officers at the Fraternal Brotherhood lodge in Masonic hall, last Friday evenng, Supreme Past President Haney officiating. After the lodge adjourned refreshments were served and an informal program gave enjoyment to the members and visitors present.

A charming little affair on Tuesday was the pretty Luncheon given by Mrs. Josephine Bryant, in her home on Third and Belmont streets. The guests were Glendale people and covers were laid for ten. A most excellent repast and a fine time were reported. Mrs. Bryant's well-known hospitality and bright capability as a hostess have made her very popular among Glendalians, and in her home always is found the genuine old-time Southern hospitality which is known as "the real thing."

AFTERNOON TEA AND RECEPTION

Very successful socially and otherwise, was the charming reception and afternoon tea given by the Presbyterian Ladies' Aid Society, on Wednesday afternoon in the handsome home of Mrs. C. F. Parker, on Central avenue, to the strangers and visitors among us, our teachers, club women, church workers and members of every woman's society and fraternity in Glendale, including guests from Tropico churches and Woman's Club.

Mrs. Daniel Campbell, Mrs. S. Lawrence Ward and Mrs. C. F. Parker stood in the receiving line, and Mrs. Frank Albright, Mrs. M. P. Harrison, Mrs. Mary Fiske and Mrs. Thos. Ogg looked after the serving of tea and cakes in the dining room. Several of the ladies were busily employed with the many introductions and others piloted the lookout parties to the bright sun-parlor and spacious roof garden, from where, as the day was perfect, the all-around view was unexcelled. For the occasion the rooms had been most tastefully decorated. The broad verandah was beautified with many potted plants, evergreens and swinging baskets of greenery. The drawing room was bright with "Ard-E'evin" poinsettias and groups of graceful carrot fern from the canyons. In the dining room the table held a lovely mass of princess violets as a center piece, and violets were daintily strewn over the embroidered table linen. Mrs. J. W. Parker furnished an instrumental number, and laughter and conversation made the afternoon pass all too soon. The ladies already have plans for another affair of similar nature for the near future. There were about one hundred and fifty present.

THE GROWTH OF GLENDALE.

A recent count of houses in and about Glendale gave some rather surprising results, which we publish herewith. While the count is probably not exact we have personally satisfied ourselves that it is approximately correct. With two counts before us in regard to the number of buildings on the east side of Glendale avenue, we take the smaller number for our purpose, and in regard to the count on the west side, we assume that the claim made by the promoters of the Valley View tract to the effect that a hundred houses have been put up there, is correct.

Between San Fernando road and Central avenue, and between First street and Riverdale Drive.	150
Between Glendale avenue and Central avenue, in city	230
East of Glendale avenue to hill west of Eagle Rock	375
Total	755

This indicates a population of 3500 people and means that we are rapidly outgrowing our country village aspect. It means, moreover, that we may soon graduate from a city of the sixth to one of the fifth class. When that occurs our city can be subdivided into wards which will be a great advantage politically, as the bunching of all of our city trustees from one section will then be impossible, as they will have to be selected by wards, a change which will do away with a cause for friction which now exist.

W. R. NEWTON.

William Russel Newton, of East Second street, Glendale, after a long illness passed quietly away at about 8 p. m., on Tuesday, Jan. 21st. Mr. Newton was well known to many of our citizens as one of the conductors on the Pacific Electric line between Glendale and Los Angeles for some time. He had made himself universally respected by his unfailing courtesy and kindness while in this position and many who had only known him in this position were the interested friends of the days of illness.

He was born in McMinn county, Tenn.

He leaves a widow, the daughter of Mrs. Quick, so well known in the religious circles of Los Angeles, and two sons, James A., a student in the Polytechnic High school of Los Angeles, and Wm. Milton, employed in the grocery of Mr. Shaver.

Mr. Newton was a member of the Presbyterian church and has shown the fruits of a truly Christian spirit during all his sickness.

The funeral service was held on Thursday afternoon at the Pulliam Undertaking Parlors of Glendale, and was very brief and simple. It was conducted by Dr. Ward, the pastor of Mr. Newton.

The family of the deceased are very warm in their gratitude to the many friends who have shown their kindness to them during the protracted illness and in this time of bereavement.

DEATH OF REV. HOWE.

The funeral of the Rev. Howe, father of Prof. Harry L. Howe, of the High School, was held at his residence in West Glendale, on Tuesday last at 2 p.m., Rev. Sherman, ex-presiding elder of the Michigan Conference of the M. E. church, made the funeral address and was assisted in the conduct of the services by Revs. Burton and Goodsell. The interment was at Forest Lawn cemetery. Mr. Howe, when attacked by his last illness, was on a visit to his son, with whom he had been staying only a short time.

DEATH OF MRS. JONAH.

Mrs. Mary C. Jonah, wife of N. C. Jonah, died at their residence on Fourth street, Monday morning last, of pneumonia. Mrs. Jonah had been ill but a few days and serious results were not anticipated until within a day or two before the end came. The body was taken by relatives to Los Angeles, where interment occurred. Mrs. Jonah leaves several small children and a husband who is a partial invalid.

LOST—Left in some store or office in Glendale, a black silk umbrella. Reward if returned to this office or Mrs. J. E. Edwards, Second street.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The school was closed Tuesday afternoon in order that the pupils might attend the funeral of Prof. Howe's father.

Several of the students have been absent this week on account of measles; about ten pupils have thus missed their examinations.

The Glendale High School is organizing a baseball team with Vincent Burton as manager. Burton comes here with a good record as a ball player, and with him on the team it looks like a winning team this year.

A number of High School pupils have since Wednesday enjoyed a very welcome holiday, they being exempt from the examinations in progress, on account of high standing in their studies. This speaks well not only for the pupils, but their hard-working teachers also.

The Track Team of the Glendale High School is making a good showing, and when the track is finished they expect to be in good condition and will meet Whittier on Friday, Feb. 7, at Whittier. The following officers were elected: Clarence Emery, manager; Joy Goodsell, captain, and Richard Stine, assistant captain.

A JOLLY LUNCHEON.

A jolly little social event was the taffy pull which wound up with a splendid Dutch luncheon, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Sadler, Central avenue, Miss Marian Sadler acting as hostess, recently.

The guests were in part those who will participate in a charming little drama to be given about the middle of February by the young people of St. Mark's Episcopal church. Among them were Carl Sheu, Tropico; Alec McCann, Dan Kelty, Miss B. Lathorn, Miss Emma Williams, Miss Laura Germain, Miss Babb Valentine and Miss Lucile Pitman.

H. N. JARVIS.

We regret to note the death at the Hollenbeck Home, Los Angeles of Mr. H. N. Jarvis, formerly a resident of Tropico, at the age of 85 years. The funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at the home. Mr. Jarvis was one of the old-timers of this section of the valley and while a resident here was active in working for the upbuilding of the community. His wife, who survives him, has been and still is a worker in public affairs and her many friends here extend to her their earnest expression of sympathy in her bereavement.

SHOOTING SCORE AT GUN CLUB'S GROUNDS.

Scores made at the week end shoot of the Gun Club are as follows:

D. R. Easton, 19 out of 30; E. J. O'Connell, 25 out of 30; J. T. McClellan, 20 out of 30.

The club has secured new shooting grounds just north of the Woodberry hill, where the conditions are all favorable for good work.

The next regular meeting of the club will be held Tuesday evening next, at Zerr's Drug Store.

A GOOD WORK.

Through the active efforts of Mr. F. R. Sinclair and one or two others, assisted by the generous response of a number of citizens to the appeal for such a worthy object, a neat four-room cottage has been erected on the land belonging to her grandfather, Mr. C. V. Brown, on First street near Verdugo Road, and donated to Mrs. Minkler, whose husband died a month ago as the result of an accident. Mrs. Minkler's need was great, as she has several small children to support and it is gratifying to know that a home has been provided for her.

Card of Thanks

We desire to express our sincere thanks to our neighbors and friends who sympathized with us in our recent bereavement.

MRS. ED. H. DEAN,
MRS. ORIN DEAN.

Card of Thanks

I wish to extend my heartfelt thanks to the many friends for their expressions of sympathy and great kindness during the sickness and death of my wife. N. S. JONAH.

The Local Gas Company

The Southern California Gas Circuit Co. now has the signatures of something over 1100 consumers. Of places offered for a plant it has selected one (subject to approval of its engineer, who was expected back from Death Valley,) which meets the approval of those of the directors who have examined it. The company holds an option on this stte, with the privilege of buying two and one-half to seven acres. The option also covers oil and water rights. Both oil and water will come to the works by gravity. The location makes it possible to supply Sherman and Beverly under profitable conditions. For Hollywood and Glendale, and possibly Colegrove, no pressure at the storage tanks will be required. Glendale especially has sufficient altitude so that pipes once laid and gas fed to them, it will by its own ascending quality reach the consumer. The same is true of Hollywood, only in less degree. If the company engineer gives final approval of the site, it will be purchased at once for cash. So the prospect for an independent gas supply seems brighter than ever.—Hollywood Citizen.

Improved Telephone Service

Beginning January 1st, the Sunset Telephone Company abolished all four-party lines, the same service being given hereafter on a two-party line at the same price. The practical effect of this is that the subscriber will hear none but his own bell, being in that respect identical with the individual line. Altho nominally effective January 1st, it will be some time before the actual transfer of lines can be made.

A Good Investment

To be good, must be safe. A savings account in the Bank of Glendale offers you absolute security, not only because all loans are made to responsible people of Glendale or on Glendale real estate, but because its board of directors who approve all loans are from our best and most conservative business men, and whose judgment may be depended on to protect the interest of its depositors. 37tf

BRAVE MRS. McDONALD.

There is one brave little woman, Mrs. Thomas McDonald, residing in Tropico on the Imler tract, who, if medals for bravery were being bestowed in this valley, would certainly receive a most handsome one for a brave and heroic deed which she performed Tuesday evening.

Eula May, the six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. U. S. May, of Penn street, while standing near a large iron pin, to which the cow belonging to her father was picketed, fell as the cow having become frightened suddenly drew the pin, and began running most frantically down Penn street and across vacant lots. Little Eula's ankles became fastened in the chain, near the pin, and the cow running most wildly the child was unable to extricate herself. On and on rushed the maddened bovine, dragging the poor little girl dangling at the end of the chain with the iron stake. Fortunately there were no stumps, fences, trees of other obstacles for the enraged creature to dash the child against.

Mrs. Thomas H. McDonald, who happened to be attending to a few minor chores near her home, saw the maddened cow rushing madly her way and observed the little girl fastened to the tnd of the chain, took the situation in at a glance and immediately rushed to rescue the child. Mrs. McDonald succeeded in stopping the cow and extricated the little girl from her most perilous perdicament. Mrs. McDonald's cool-headedness and calm nerve did not desert her for one moment, and without any outcry or even a murmur Mrs. McDonald performed an act that would cause the bravest and strongest-hearted of men to shudder. When Mr. May saw the mad rush of the cow and realized that his little daughter was being dragged so cruelly over the rough ground, he rushed to her assistance, but fell over a wire fence, thus impeding his progress. When he finally reached the cow Mrs. McDonald had rescued Eula and was caring in a most devoted manner for the terror-stricken child. A physician was summoned and a careful examination made of the little girl's body. Aside from the numerous cruel bruises and scratches which the child sustained the physician pronounced no broken bones and thinks there will be no serious results.

Saturday afternoon Mrs. McDonald again proved herself a noble self-sacrificing and womanly woman. Little two-year-old Haymond Chandler, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Chandler, of Central avenue, wandered away from the home of his grandparents and walked until nearly dark or until his chubby little legs could carry him no farther. He then laid down under the spreading branches of a pepper tree and fell asleep. Fortunately for him he was near the home of Mrs. McDonald, whose little children discovered the sleeping child. With a true mother heart Mrs. McDonald went to the child and taking him in her arms carried him into her home, where she laid Raymond on the cot, where he slept sweetly until dark. When the child awakened Mrs. McDonald bathed the lad and gave him food and drirk. In the meantime Mrs. McDonald telephoned all residents throughout the Valley reporting the finding of the little boy. By eight o'clock Raymond had been returned to his grandparents, but said he wanted to see "good Mrs. McDonald again."

ODE TO RAIN.

Oh Rain!
We are glad you have come again!
Do it some more,
Just as you used to do
In days of yore!

Before the tenderfoot came
And spoiled the game
With his idea;
Just as if he knew,
Whether we need much or few
Inches or yards of you!

Come, gentle rain!
Don't you refrain
Just because a tourist girl
Wants her little locks to curl
But just you rain!

We don't care if that swell hat
Gets it ker spat!
Let that there tourist feller
Hoist up his umbreller
Wear his galoshes;
We are the people—
If not, who b'gosh is?

So keep right on
Droppin' them dollars;
Don't you regard them there
Fellers that hollers;
Soak the old dried-up earth—
My! That's a dollar's worth.
Go it again!

CLUB DINNER A SUCCESS.

Collins.

"THE HOLY CITY."

As every one expected, "The Holy City" goes into its second week, beginning January 27. The unprecedented run of this play a year ago, when it held the Auditorium stage for five weeks, gives every indication of being repeated with interest. From the moment of its announcement the rush for tickets began, and an almost unbroken line has existed at the box office ever since. Both matinees were sold out before the week opened, and the night sales were almost equally as heavy. In announcing it for a second week Mr. Ferris simply accedes to a universal demand coming from all quarters. Hundreds who were turned away last year—in spite of the five weeks' run—have insisted that they be given an opportunity this year to see it. The advance orders for tickets amply justified at least a second week, and possibly longer continuation. All admit that the play this year is even superior to the production given in the past. The Ferris company itself is stronger, the players fitting their several roles admirably, the stage management and the manipulation of the scenic and light effects were without a hitch.

The depiction of the character of Mary Magdalene by Miss Florence Stone is in itself a superb drawing card. She feels this part more than any other she has ever played, and her impersonation is extremely touching, life-like and fascinating. Mr. Kilgour, Mr. Wayne, Mr. Edwin, Mr. Von Meter and Mr. Beamish, all have fine, manly roles, and the ladies in the company are delightful in their several impersonations. An added feature of unusual beauty is the music on the thirty thousand dollar pipe organ, which is an especially important feature of this religious drama. Mr. William Edson Strobridge is at the keyboard, and his masterful solo work, as well as his assistance in the ensemble add greatly to the beauty of the entire production.

CONSTITUTION OF THE STARS.

IV.

Although the stars are so far away that only in the case of very few of them is it possible to get any measure of distance at all, we can, nevertheless, affirm with certainty, the nature and condition of the materials of which they are composed. This information is revealed to us by the light of the stars. It is as if they were constantly sending us messages, imparting to us the wonderful story of their existence. The language of the message is very complicated and difficult to understand, but the patience and ingenuity of the human mind is, apparently, boundless; and though much of the message is still untranslated, much is already made plain. As the stars shine by their own light, if only we can see a star, no matter how far off it may be, its light coming to us will tell us its story. Careful study of the spectrum analysis of starlight shows the existence in these orbs of hydrogen, lime, iron and other metals, and many other substances with which we are familiar on this earth, all in a state of glowing gas. And although the interior must be enormously compressed by the gravitation of the outer parts, it is doubtful if anything like a solid body exists in the sun or stars. The enormously high temperature would vaporize any substance with which we are familiar, notwithstanding the great pressure. Their condition may be described as one of unstable equilibrium, neither solid, liquid nor gaseous, but verging on all three. As one writer says: "The sun is in all probability essentially an enormuous bubble, enveloped in incandescent cloud from which, by the mechanism of radiation, its energy is transmitted into external space." The same is true of the stars, for the sun is but one of them.

But although the stars exhibit much general uniformity in constitution, there is, nevertheless, much diversity in detail, there being hardly any two of them alike, in the substances of which they are composed, in their temperature or density, and this diversity only increases with more refined methods of investigation. The most remarkable differences are found in the amount of light and heat which they individually emit. It was once thought that the birghter stars were the nearest to us, and the fainter ones farthest away. But as parallaxes were measured with greater accuracy this proved to be only partially true. Brightness, in fact, gives no sure indication of distance at all, for Rigel, in the great constellation of Orion, one of the brightest stars in the sky, and Canopus, second only to Sirius, show exceedingly small parallaxes—too small, in fact, to be appreciable, less than one-fiftieth (1-50) of a second of arc. Some idea of the minute measurements of angles involved in these parallaxes may be gathered from the statement that two lines inclined at an angle of one second of arc would approach each other by no more than one inch in a distance of 3¼ miles. Nevertheless, such are the delicacy and fineness of modern instruments that it is possible to read and measure an angle of one-fiftieth of a second, and the fact that neither of these two bright stars exhibit a parallax of even this minute degree proves them to be at least a million times further away from us than our sun. It is estimated that Canopus must be ten thousand times brighter than the sun, and that a planet situated as near Canopus as the earth is to the sun would become red hot by its radiation.

On the other hand, there are many small stars whose parallaxes have been measured, and whose distances are, therefore, known, but whose brightness is only about one-fiftieth that of the sun, and many of those whose distances have been ascertained are so faint that they are quite invisible to unaided eyesight.

A remarkable correspondence has been established between the spectra of stars and their color. There is reason to believe that stars of type No. 1, such as Sirius, white or bluish in color, are of the most recent formation. Yellow stars, such as Capella, belonging to type No. 2, older, and red stars, like Arcturus, forming type No. 3, the oldest of all. In the first type very few elements are detected, the spectrum showing for the most part only hydrogen or helium. In the second type, to which it is supposed our sun belongs, the spectra appear much more complex, many more elements appearing. It is as if in the first type the temperature is so high that all but very few of the elements are disintegrated by the great heat, and that the gradual cooling of the star, as in the second type, permits the various elements to resume their individuality. Of course, we know nothing of such disintegration of the elements on earth; but neither have we any experience of the inconceivably high temperature existing in the sun and stars. And it is possible that matter of all kinds behaves quite differently when subjected to such conditions, to what it does under conditions with which we are familiar.

The spectra of the third type stars, besides being very complex, show many dark absorption bands which indicate a much lower temperature. It thus appears that the stars are of no fixed constitution, but are constantly cooling by radiation, and therefore contracting in size, such cooling and contraction producing the most important changes, corresponding to different stages of evolution in what has been aptly termed the "Life of a Star."

The sun and stars have probably been radiating heat and light into space for untold millions of years, and it continues to be one of the greatest problems of modern science to ascertain and account for the source of this heat. Lord Kelvin compared the sun to a battleship belching forth shells from her batteries; if the firing is kept up, the supply of ammunition will be sooner or later exhausted. Can we tell how long the supply of energy in the sun or stars will hold out? We know that the sun and stars are composed of similar substances to those found on the earth; and knowing also their capacity for heat, and the quantity of heat annually radiated by the sun, we can tell that unless the supply is in some way replenished it would only last a few thousand years.

It was at one time suggested that the supply of energy might be kept up by meteors falling into the sun, as it is certain that myriads of them are ever in the vicinity of the central orb, but critical examination proved this cause to be quite inadequate. The earth encounters millions of meteors every day, and the temperature is not thereby raised appreciably.

Another most ingenious guess at the truth, probably the latest theory developed, has been made by Kelvir and Helmholtz, who showed that the simple contraction of the volume of the sun, through the mutual gravitation of its parts, would raise and maintain the temperature necessary for the present supply of light and heat for several million years. The contraction is roughly estimated at 220 feet a year, or 4 miles in a century. The sun is 880,000 miles in diameter.

Since this theory was broached, however, that wonderful substance radium, has been discovered, and it is impossible as yet to say what part it may not play in the economy of solar physics. As radium appears to radiate heat without apparent diminution it has been suggested as a source of constant rejuvenation for the sun and stars.

But the subject though exceedingly fascinating, is one of great difficulty, and the keenest intellects and most patient investigators are engaged in attempting its solution and ever accumulating facts and devising new and more refined methods of investigation. It remains conspicuous among the many unsolved mysteries of this universe. The scientific searcher after truth is constantly reminded of Hamlet's wonderful reply to Horatio:

"There are more things in heaven and earth
Than are dreamt of in your philosophy!"

NOTICE OF HEARING PETITION FOR THE VACATION AND ABANDONMENT OF A PORTION OF FIRST STREET IN SAN FERNANDO ROAD DISTRICT, COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES, STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

NOTICE is hereby given that a petition, signed by John T. Wilson and 10 others, asking for the vacation and abandonment of a portion of First street in the San Fernando Road District, County of Los Angeles, State of California, has been filed with the Board of Supervisors of said County and the hearing thereof fixed by said Board for February 4, 1908, at 10 o'clock a.m. of said day. The portion of highway sought to be vacated is described as follows:

PRETTY HOME WEDDING.

The wedding, Tuesday, of Miss Irma Spoffard and June Story, which was solemnized at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride's uncle, W. T. Lovering, of Verdugo avenue, though marked by extreme simplicity, was of interest to many friends. The bride, who was unattended, wore a gown of brown chiffon taffeta, trimmed with dainty Valenciennes lace. She wore orange blossoms in her hair and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations and asparagus fern. The service was read by Rev. J. H. Avery, of the Methodist church, in the presence of relatives only. A dainty wedding supper was served in the dining room and the table was ornamented with a center piece of violets and ferns, violets being mingled with smilax elsewhere on the table. At the conclusion of a brief trip Mr. and Mrs. Story will reside on the San Fernando Road, where they will receive after February 1.

The bride came to Burbank about a year ago from Boston, making her home with her uncle, W. Lovering and during her short residence here has won a large circle of friends. The groom has made his home here for the past five years and is well known throughout the valley as an honest and industrious young man.
